Rosetta is a 1999 French-Belgian film written and directed by Jean-Pierre Dardenne and Luc Dardenne. It tells the story of Rosetta, a teenage girl who lives in a trailer park with her alcoholic mother. Trying to survive and escape her situation, she attempts to find and hold a job that will allow her to move out of the caravan and away from her mother.

In Belgium the film inspired a new law prohibiting employers from paying teen workers less than the minimum wage
