Jen Hofer is a Los Angeles-based poet, translator, interpreter, teacher, knitter, bookmaker, public letter-writer, and urban cyclist. Her translation of Negro marfil by Myriam Moscona, titled Ivory Black, was published in 2011 by Les Figues Press.

Myriam Moscona is an award-winning Mexican poet of Sephardic origin. She has published numerous collections of poetry, including Las visitantes, Vísperas, Negro marfil, El que nada, and most recently, De par en par.