

THE DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY PRESENTS

SARAH BUSS

University of Michigan

"Why Constitutivist Accounts of Practical Reason Cannot Account for Our Kind of Agency"

In this paper, I argue that constitutivist accounts of practical reason cannot do justice to the units of our kind of agency. In particular, these accounts imply that the point of view we occupy insofar as we are the subject of pro- and con- attitudes is inaccessible to the point we occupy insofar as we aim to determine what we have reason to do.

MAY 10, 2019 | 3 PM - 5 PM
HIB 55 (SEMINAR ROOM)