
Charlotte Biltekoff (PhD, Brown University) is a widely published writer in food studies, the cultural politics of dietary health, and American eating habits. She is the author of Eating Right in America: The Cultural Politics of Food and Health(2013) and contributor to various print publications, documentaries, and media outlets. Charlotte is Associate Professor of American Studies at UC Davis.

Jeremiah Axelrod (PhD, UCI) is director of the Institute for the Study of Los Angeles at Occidental College. He is the author of Inventing Autopia: Envisioning the Modern Metropolis in Jazz Age Los Angeles(2009), which examines the cultural and intellectual history of mid–20th century Los Angeles.

Ev Stanton (PhD, UCI) is a writer, historian, media artist, and designer. He is currently working on a children’s history book series for MacMillan/Holt and also has ongoing projects with PBS and the Discovery Channel. Ev’s children’s books, including Izzy and the Candy Palace, help support community groups and education in Southern California.

HYBRID WRITING IN THE HUMANITIES

12:00PM-1:30PM DECEMBER 7, 2016
HG 1010 | LUNCH WILL BE SERVED

UCI School of Humanities