

STUDY ABROAD TIPS

FOR HUMANITIES MAJORS

MAJOR REQUIREMENTS

EAP courses applied to major requirements should match UCI courses in the following ways:

- Content/Theme: EAP courses do not need to be an exact match for UCI courses however they should meet the basic content of the course you are attempting to replace.
- Units: EAP courses should be at least the same number of units as the UCI courses you are attempting to replace. EAP courses can be combined to meet the minimum number of required units
- Course level: Lower division courses (any course at UCI numbered 1-99) may not be used for upper division requirements. Upper division courses (any course at UCI numbered 100-199) may not be used for general education requirements.

Look for "additional courses from list" sections of your major requirements and consider using study abroad courses in those sections. Carefully check the course catalogue for major courses that must be completed at UCI.

WHY GO ABROAD?

As a Humanities major, a study abroad experience can uniquely benefit your academic experience without hindering your degree progress. Apply all the concepts of humanistic inquiry you're learning at UCI and explore them in a whole new context! Consider the following benefits of studying abroad:

- Strengthen your language skills and fulfill the school requirement
- Explore a new culture or academic interest
- Fulfill major electives with unique and exciting courses
- Unlock career opportunities through fieldwork or internships
- Gain more independence and develop interpersonal skills

USING YOUR EXPERIENCE

Remember to keep all course materials:

- Syllabus
- Course description
- Written assignments

Submit them with your petition upon your return.

After courses appear on your transcript you can petition for specific requirements.
